My Dear Jane, Everything is, at length, arranged to my satisfaction. The sick-certificate has passed the Board, and permission to return to Europe has consequently been granted. We shall sail by the General Palmer, the 1st prox. Excuse haste; you will understand that the preparations for so long a voyage occupy almost every moment, and we shall have abundant leisure, thank Heaven, for the discussion of every possible point of interest, during my three years furlough. Love to my mother and Charlotte. Selina joins in all manner of kind regards, God bless you. Affectionately yours, George Ainslib. Madras, 25th March, 18--. P. S. I hope you will not delude yourselves by expecting in Selina any thing very much above the common order. You know she is a foreigner, with relation to you girls, who have been born and educated in Old England. You must make up your minds to have a good deal to teach, and to be satisfied if she is tolerably tractable. My mother, I know, is all indulgence; but I am half afraid of Charlotte, whose letters oblige me to believe that time has not softened her disposition to dislike and to censure, what she considers less refined or wellinformed, or--comme ilfaut, that, I think, is the word, -- than suits her habits. For my sake, however, I hope she will make the best of the matter, and especially when she remembers how little choice a man has in India....
