These canes were constructed from 75-mm ID glass pipe identical to that used for the primary manifold. (See fig. 5.) A 20-cm section of pipe or an orate containing three sampling ports was located 4 m from the inlet. This 20-cm section then provided sampling ports similar to those used on the primary manifold. See CO and NO groups. Each inlet was a manifold of this type were provided for the proximately 6 m above the ground. A roots blower located on each cane at ground level provided continuous flow rates of 25 standard L sec. These individual sampling canes provided two important functions: The capability to sample ambient air with significantly less residence time in a manifold than available from the longer primary manifold and the capability for comparison of measurements from the individual canes with those obtained from the longer primary manifold. In addition, an exhaust manifold was provided and served as a waste line for all instrument exhausts including surplus gas flow from the gas dilution system. Its pumping source was a roots blower located at the exhaust and under trailer 2. (See fig. 3.) Dynamic gas dilution system. -An important component of the supporting facilities was the dynamic gas dilution system.
