

Does Britain Need a Financial Regulator?: Statutory Regulation, Private Regulation & Financial Markets

By Philip Booth, Terry Arthur

Institute of Economic Affairs. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Does Britain Need a Financial Regulator?: Statutory Regulation, Private Regulation & Financial Markets, Philip Booth, Terry Arthur, It is difficult to imagine financial markets without a state regulator. But it was not so long ago that financial markets in Britain developed their own regulation, without government intervention. This monograph examines the economic case for a statutory regulator of investment transactions and finds it wanting. Private stock exchanges can provide regulation at less cost and less intrusively than the FSA.

An incredibly amazing ebook with perfect and lucid answers. It is written in basic terms and never difficult to understand. It has been written in an exceptionally basic way and it is only right after I finished reading this ebook in which it in fact modified me, affected the way I really believe.
