Not illustrated. 1865 Excerpt: .of glaciers at former epochs apparently in harmony with some of the conclusions of Charpentier, Tyndall, and Frankland. It seems to follow from the views developed by the author that epochs characterized by the simultaneous coexistence of very different climatic conditions over different regions would depend upon variations in the distribution of land and water, combined with obstructions of the hydrothermal agency, whereby the surface of the earth receives heat from its interior. Geological observation seems to point out that such conditions would be most likely to arise during the later and prehistoric formations, as well as during the period of the physical history of the planet which now witnesses the development of our own race. Note on some of the Oolitic Strata seen at Dundry. By M. Hubert. On Otolites. By E. S. Higgins. On the Origin of certain Boulders, and on the Ossiferous Caverns...
