Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . CARRY EACH HIS BURDEN is the debut fiction collection by James Goettel. Drawing from his background as an academic, media freelancer, and screenwriter, Goettel s writing is at once cinematic, richly crafted, and fiercely original. The five stories within are thematically tied to the collection s title: Carry Each His Burden. In the title story, the son of a literary giant has carried a family secret for forty years and is now ready to confront it and his father once and for all. In Animal Kingdom , a pedophile stalks his prey unaware he too is being stalked. Memories Can t Wait delivers a powerful meditation on remembrance, loss and love through one man s struggle to live with his own heart-wrenching memories before time itself runs out. In Letting the Days Go By , a man tries to outrun his past, a broken marriage, and the trail of forgotten days rolling out behind him as he takes to the road - one that leads him, ironically, not to a new life, but to a confrontation with the past that still haunts him. And finally, Almost Blue invites the reader to eavesdrop on multiple first person accounts of a man who turned the art world on its ear before disappearing into himself just as his most famous painting disappeared, leaving behind a fog of clues, a cloud of suspicion, and a storm of controversy over it and its connection to the death of a brilliant, but troubled musician.
