The above table taken by consent from Clodd s Primer of Evolution (Longsman, Green CO.) gives a fairly correct impression of the strata and the first appearance of typical plants and animals. An impression of the time necessary to make all the layers of rocks may be inferred from the fact that the Tertiary Age required five million years. CHAPTER V. THE FACTORS OF EVOLUTION. There are various forms of life to be seen on earth but all the forms are composed of cells made up of the same chemical elements. On this account all life is the same in essence, and whether it be of flower or bird it has basic qualities that are the same, as,...
