Schoonover was a most popular member, one might almost say the leader, of her set. That is to say, she was fair, thin, and thirty-five, and spent most of her time at clubs, charity bazars, and concerts. Besides dominating her husband and the other domestics, she enjoyed smoking, drank cocktails, and played bridge, not as a game, but scientifically. It was her profession. Some people actually went so far as to attribute her remarkable skill to dexterity of the hand; but always behind her back. One morning she was on the chaise longue of her boudoir, when the maid, French, and therefor pretty, entered with the mornings mail. For a little while madame continued fondling the silken ear of her pet spaniel; then she put him on the floor with an admonishing pat and stretched luxuriously, revealing shapely, white arms, as the pink silk...

Reviews

This book is great. It is written in simple words and not difficult to understand. I discovered this pdf from my dad and I suggested this ebook to find out.
