I did not suspect Mr. Somerset of having any of that description. Then you gave him more credit than he deserved. May I ask, resumed Clarentine, hesitatingly, who-- You had better, interrupted Mrs. Denbigh, not ask any thing about the matter, my dear, for it could give you no pleasure to hear an account either of the subject or the style. Dear Madam, did it contain any thing that related to me I see your curiosity is upon the rack, and therefore till it is gratified it would be vain, I suppose, to expect any rest. Know then, my dear child, that the letter is from Mr. Manners. Mr. Manners! repeated Clarentine, blushing-- Ah! then its contents, I fear, may be too well guessed. -t Certain it is, at least, resumed Mrs. Denbigh, that he appears to have guessed you very thoroughly. He writes from Bath, some...
