Excerpt from Philadelphia Medical Times, Vol. 7: A Bi-Weekly Journal of Medical and Surgical Science; October 14, 1876 Surgeon Major Hall is known to the profession by his advocacy of the treatment of cholera by vascular depressants. Not only had he seen much of this malady in India, but he underwent a severe attack himself. From his varied experience he arrived at the conclusion that the commencement of the morbid process was severe Spasm of the muscular walls of the arterioles, by which the pulse was almost obliterated while the heart was acting tumultuously and forcibly; the spasm in the renal and hepatic vessels cutting off the urine and the bile, while the uids of the blood were squeezed out of the portal section of the venous system, as the point of least resistance. Having come to this conclusion, it seemed a rational practice to administer chloral hydrate, whose power to relax and dilate the peripheral arterioles had recently been demonstrated. This was done, subcutaneously, with very satisfactory results, even during a rising attack of cholera, the most severe test to which it could be subjected, not only by Mr. Hall, but by others. His views have met with much approval by many here who are competent to judge in the matter, and are valuable from their physiological bearings. Surgeon Hall is now under orders for India, where he is to give his plan a thorough trial, and test further the efficacy of the chloral hydrate, as well as nitrite of amyl inhalations, calabar bean, and other vascular depressants, in cholera. The schools are all preparing for another winter campaign, and as the different...
