GENERAL REMARKS IN PROOF OF PHRENOLOGY. Phrenology professes to point out a connexion between attain manifestations of the mind, and particular condition and developments of the brain. It asserts, for example, that the feeling of benevolence or kindness, is always manifested and indicated by means of, and in proportion to, a given portion of the brain; (see cuts;) and that the same is true of cautiousness or circumspection, of love, hatred, and reason, and of all the other mental faculties and feelings; and, vice versa, that the relative developments and various conditions of given portions of the brain, manifest and indicate the character and talents of individuals; so that the one can be always ascertained by an observance of the other. Phrenology also claims to be a new and complete system of intellectual and moral philosophy, and professes to develop and illustrate the fundamental principles of human nature--principles which are inseparably connected with mans improvement and happiness, and which embrace ever thing pertaining to him as a physical, moral, and intellectual being. It rests for support, in part, upon the truth of the following propositions. I. The brain is the organ of the mind, or that corporeal instrument which the mind employs in the exercise of thought and feeling. This proposition is established by the following arguments. First. How impossible soever it may be for us to comprehend the connexion between mind and matter, it is, nevertheless, indisputably true,...
