Excerpt: . . . parliament must suffer violence, and the cause of the accused sustain irreparable injury, and intolerable oppression. He was clearly decided in his opinion, therefore, from the weight of precedents, from the principles of the constitution, from the authority of the greatest luminaries of the law, from the immutable principles of justice, from the expediency of public trials, and from every argument of plain common sense, that impeachments not only continued unaffected by a dissolution of parliament, but existed in statu quo, notwithstanding the operation of such an event; he therefore would vote, with cheerful confidence, for the original motion of the right honourable gentleman, that the impeachment of Warren Hastings, Esq. was now depending. On a division there appeared, For the Speakers leaving the chair. 30 Against it 143 The original motion was then carried. . February 17. 1792. The House having resolved itself into a committee of the whole House (of which the Earl of Mornington was chairman,) to consider of so much of His Majestys speech on the opening of the session, as related to the Public Revenue and Expenditure; the following paragraphs from the speech were read: --It will, I am persuaded, give you great satisfaction to learn that the extraordinary expenses incurred in the course of the last year have, in a great measure, been already defrayed by the grants of the session. The state of our resources will, I trust, be found more than sufficient to provide for...
