I started my journey as an entrepreneur sometime mid 1972. Just a few months previous I had enrolled for my M. Sc. degree in Physics at the Banaras Hindu University BHU as is commonly known. After my graduation in Physics - B. Sc. , end 1969, I and my friends discussed at length our possible goals. We were a bunch of guys still at 19, with no clue what life was out there. What little we knew was from our seniors who were whiling away their time after their degree doing precious nothing as no jobs were forth coming. Calcutta particularly was in turmoil owing to a radical communist group indulging in violence of all kinds. Our goal looked pretty obvious, a post graduate degree and hopefully a tenure ship at some community college. Looking back after 43 years I find four in the bunch of five went into teaching and/or research. I refused to tow that line. It not only sounded cliché, I was never cut out to be a teacher. But before I venture into what I did, let me share a secret. One in the group Subir was an excellent student and a skilled person in electronics. I spent hours with him planning and dreaming about projects and devices we were competent to fabricate and sell. Now he too is a teacher at a University near Frankfurt, Germany. I am extremely disappointed. Not because he became a teacher and is fairly happy. But what an opportunity both of us let go by. Would his life been better and happier as an entrepreneur I will never know the answer. After some 40 odd years as an entrepreneur, I...
