Excerpt from Confederated Veteran, Vol. 34: April, 1926 The 5th day of February marks the anniversary of the birth of a baby, ninety-three years ago, who grew to be one of the greatest of the heroes of the War between the States. He is formally known as Gen. James Ewell Brown Stuart, and affectionately known as Jeb Stuart and The Eyes and Ears of the Army. Dashing, gay, debonair, he left a cheery memory and a blessed memory, too, for he, lived purely and fell in honor, dying with words of submission to God upon the lips that sang in midst of peril and oft breathed a prayer from his happy heart.
