These lesser heights, whose waving lines Such beauty to the landscape give, Tell of the old Triassic times, And to my tale their witness give. The voice which called me from the deep These trapean mountains all did hear, And rose with me from natures sleep, And stand, as I stand, proudly here. And now for long telluric years, I ve stood a sentry o er the land, And watched with varying hopes and fears, The changes of Time s mighty hand. I saw the glacier in his might Sweep from the north, a frozen sea, Ice piled on ice to mountain height, Moving, methought, resistlessly. I felt his cruel Ice-bound teeth Plough in my flanks, as on his way He ground and crushed my rocks beneath: I show the furrows to this day. I ve seen the new-formed earth press...
