Learning Chinese can be frustrating and difficult, partly because its very different from European languages. Following a teacher, textbook or language course is not enough. They show you the characters, words and grammar you need to become proficient in Chinese, but they dont teach you how to learn them! Regardless of what program youre in (if any), you need to take responsibility for your own learning. If you dont, you will miss many important things that arent included in the course youre taking. If you study on your own, you need to be even more aware of what you need to do, what youre doing at the moment and the difference between them. Here are some of the questions I have asked and have since been asked many times by students: How do I learn characters efficiently How do I get the most out of my course or teacher Which are the best learning tools and resources How can I become fluent in Mandarin How can I improve my pronunciation How do I learn successfully on my own How can I motivate myself to study more How can I fit learning Chinese into a busy schedule The answers Ive found to these questions and many others form the core of this book. It took eight years of learning, researching, teaching and writing to figure these things out. Not everybody has the time to do that! I cant go back in time and help myself learn in a better way, but I can help you! This book is meant for normal students and independent language learners alike. While it covers all major areas of learning, you wont learn Chinese just by...
