Petulant she spoke, and at herself she laughed, A rosebud set with little wilful thorns, And sweet as English air could make her. Tennyson. One evening, a few weeks afterwards, Mr. Daunt remarked to his wife, Carter has been talking to me about his son. His son she said. Oh! you mean the well-dressed young man. Yes, he continued; he was brought up by an aunt in the north of England. She was a Mrs. Golding, and I think years ago I heard something of her. I believe there used to be some gossip about her and Lord Wennington. She was a lady, then, said Claire. (170) Certainly, he answered, she was what is called a lady. I thought the young fellow looked like a gentleman, she remarked. He was accustomed to a set of people quite different from his own...
