Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Spirit of Missions: October, 1860 In selecting Fort Smith as a residence, my choice was determined by its centrality to the Missionary district. My home is within a stone s cast of the Indian line, and we have reason to expect that Santa Fe will, in the fall, be accessible by stage in fifteen days. Fort Smith is the great trading point with the Indians. Every large store has its interpreter. Daily we see the red men coming in on their little ponies, and may hear their strange discourse: This place is also the point Of departure for the far West. We see officers of the army, Indian agents, and traders, from whom much valuable information may be gained. The wonderful enterprise which these men exhibit, the carelessness with which they speak of hardships and perils, are very instructive to the missionary of the Church.
