Excerpt from Eighth Biennial Report of the Board of Railroad Commissioners of the State of Vermont: June 30th, 1900 to June 30th, 1902 It is evident that in the early days of railroad legislation, the difficulties of constructing them along the narrow, winding valleys and over the hills and mountains, were so great-that the Legislature considered that every possible inducement should be extended to persons willing to engage in their construction and operation. Much of that spirit has continued to the present time. They have been given existence without much scrutiny into the provisions of their charters. Very liberal general laws have been passed both for their organization and general government. Towns have been authorized to aid liberally in their construction. All their franchises and the powers have been conferred without charge. Doubtless this has been and is a wise policy to pursue. It must however be remembered that they are improved public highways, allowed to be constructed and Oper ated for the benefit Of the public by private persons as invest ments. It is reasonable that those making this kind of invest ments shall be compensated for the use of the money invested and something for the risk. It should not be overlooked that they derive their income from the patronage of the public, the steam railroads from State and interstate traffic and the street or electric roads, from local traffic. The latter derive their income wholly through fares imposed. Upon the inhabitants of the cities and villages in which they are operated. These fares should be kept as low as will return to the investors reasonable compensa tion for the use of the money actually required and...
